Branded Game

Branded Game

- It's NOT an AD
- It's a game created in collaboration with a company
- Brand opens itself up for customers

It's not just a game with a LOGO.
It's a playable world for the brand.

How do you make a Branded Game?

You Are Not Just Making a Game

You Are Combining
a Game with a Brand

GAME

- Fun core loop
- Player Agency
- Balance and Progression
- (...)

Game must be fun
on its own

BRAND

- Brand visibility
- Target audience
- Measurable KPIs
- (...)

Brand must not be compromised

What you want to know

- Target Audience
- Campaign Goal
- KPIs
- Key Brand Concepts

The image shows a promotional graphic for SkyTrails. The top left features the 'SKY TRAILS' logo in red and white. Below it, a large white cloud contains the text 'Nonstop action. Built by you.' and 'How will you design your track today?'. The background is a blue sky with a futuristic city skyline on the left. A complex, multi-level track made of orange rails and blue supports spirals upwards from the bottom left, with a small vehicle visible on it.

Nonstop action. Built by you.

How will you design your track today?

What you want to know

Values: Creativity, Fun

Target Audience: Gen Alpha; 7-14

Campaign Goal:

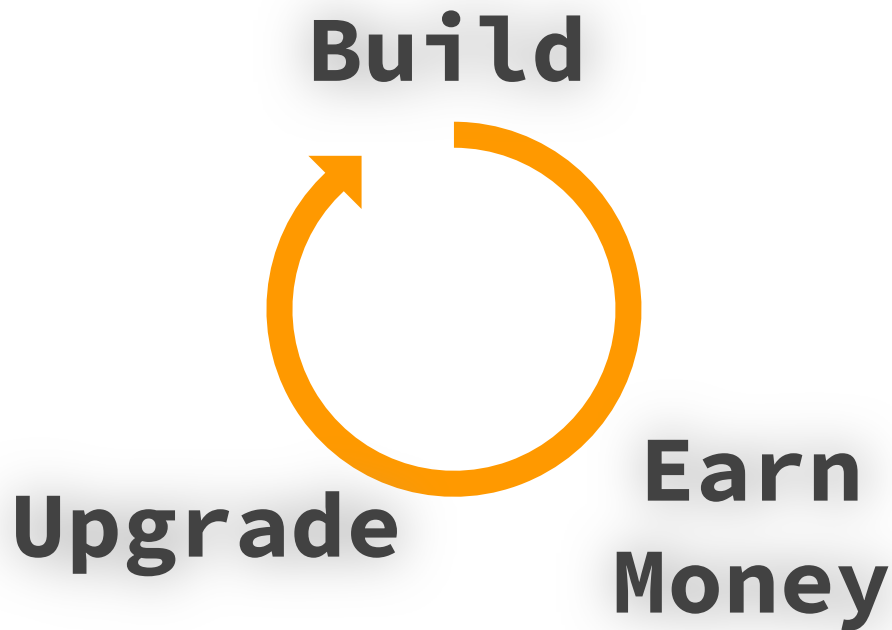

Showcase the SkyTrails, let players 'try it' in-game

KPIs: cannot say :(

Key Brand Concepts:

“Nonstop action. Built by you.”

WALL OF

WALL OF ACCEPTANCE

Bear (Me) 12:05 PM

We designed a Tycoon game about Building Your Sky Trails.

SkyTrails 12:05 PM

Our CEO loves the idea. But... we do not like that you removed the support beams from our product.

Bear (Me) 12:05 PM

We streamlined the building process. Game MUST BE easier than real life product.

SkyTrails 12:05 PM

Ok... One more thing. We do not like that there are "cool" elements like "Rings of Fire" in the game. Players will get confused that real life product is different.

Bear (Me) 12:05 PM

We can change it, so that the "not real" items, will have a special label and description that specifies these are "platform-exclusive" products.

Bear (Me) 3:37 PM

Is that okey with you?

We will put a label. Is that okey?

Yes. That's fine. Let's proceed

Pros and Cons of Working with Brands

- ✓ Budgets & Stable Income
- ✓ Visibility

- ✓ Chance for Creative Design
- ✓ Brands do not know games
- ✓ Brand gifts :)

- Extremely Tight Deadlines
- Fast Changing Deadlines
- Many Revisions
- Hard Approvals
- Low Creative Freedom
- Brands do not know games

Is It Financially Viable?

Fixed Contract Fees

If KPIs good = money
Pay X for game/update

Budgets 🤪

1 k - 500k €

(there are also big M outliers)

Is It Financially Viable?

Long-term Cooperation

Game Performs well = brand happy

Brand wants to continue

UPDATES, UPDATES, UPDATES

Switching Focus -> Other Gaming

Internal/External problems

Brand Withdraws

Game Slowly Dies :(

Summary

- You Are Combining a Game with a Brand
- You Need To 'Contradict' Your Own Ideas
- Design Is Constantly Changing
- Game Design Must Be accepted
- Working with non-game developers
